1968 MISSILE

1968 marks a year of change at Petersburg High. On the first day of school, students congregate on the front portico. In each of them there is a certain anticipation of what is to come, and they establish some goal which they will attempt to fulfill by hard work and a growing interest in their school.

PETERSBURG HIGH SCHOOL

PETERSBURG, VIRGINIA

Our school building, constructed fifty years ago, is the alma mater of 1500 students. Here they learn not only what is taught in the classroom, but also how to be responsible teenagers in a growing, developing universe, our school world. Petersburg High is the greatest in the minds of its students, but it is the spirit and enthusiasm of the student body in all the phases of school life that have put us on top.

Petersburg High: A World Within A World

Corridors and stairways jam-packed with students are characteristic of the confusion aroused by the crowded conditions. This scene is typical of the rush during the seven minutes' break between fourth and fifth periods, when the students return to their home base rooms to gather their books for the remainder of the day.

As the students of all grade levels embark on and complete their four years of high school, we find that many have reached or will reach their highest personal goals at PHS. For this they have been rewarded by their own pride in their accomplishments. After graduation, they will continue their search for knowledge; they will set higher goals and acquire greater rewards. Our school world corresponds in every way to the world in which we live; each student, in order to get the most out of life in this world, strives for achievement in each of the phases of school life.

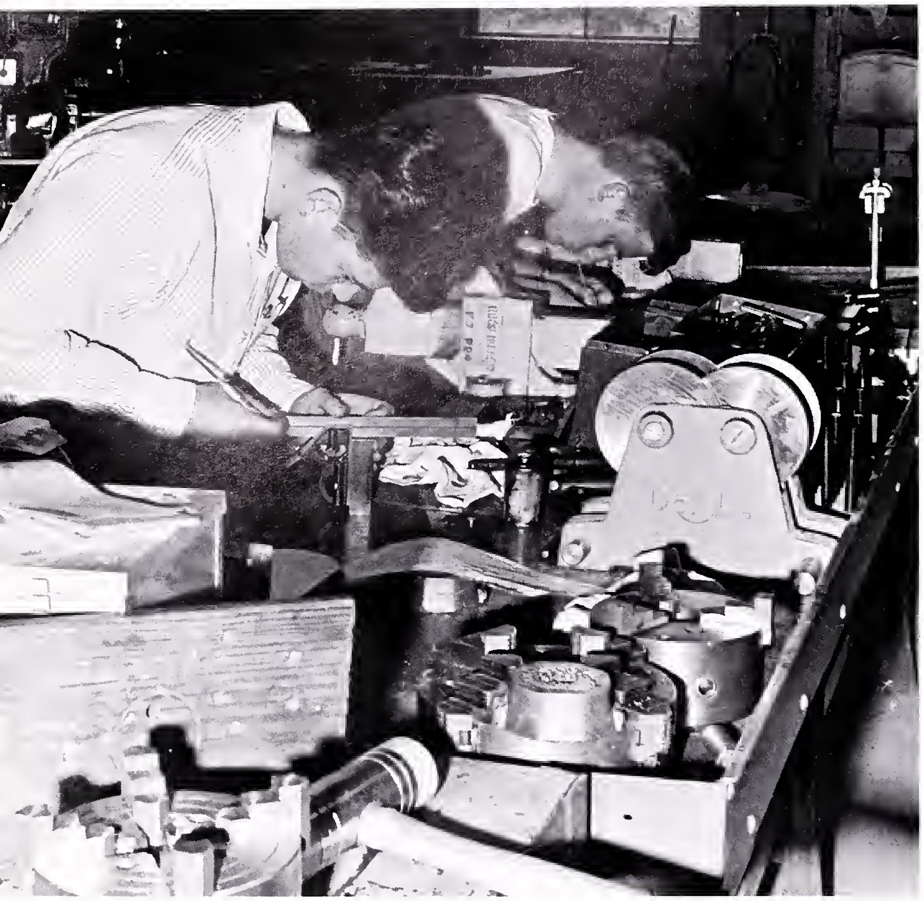
However, just as the outside world must grow and change, so must our world. In this, our fiftieth year, the changes have become most significant. Because of the need for adjustment to prepare the students for entrance to the modern procedure in a new school building within the next few years, the school was departmentalized this year, and one member of the faculty was chosen to head each department. The students were faced with a no-homeroom situation, initiated this year to avoid wasted homeroom time. The students accepted these changes as growth; the many innovations as development, and carried on with enthusiasm and spirit, a sign that they are prepared to face the outside world, and the challenges they will face there.

New Courses Characterize School Change

In a relatively short number of years, many new courses have helped to enrich the minds of students. A few years ago a full scale vocational program attracted many students whose interests differed from the college bound courses. In vocational study students develop a skill which enables them to get a good job upon graduation from high school. This program also includes an intensive nursing program for girls. This year a course in aerospace will train many boys who may wish to make piloting a career, and many girls who would someday like to be stewardesses.

For college-bound students an advanced course in reading and essay writing, English Nine, has helped to prepare them for the difficult English curriculum that colleges offer.

In the last few years, it has become most important for students to know what is going on in the outside world; to be able to discuss timely issues as intelligent adults. In accordance with this need, History Five, or current events, became a must in every junior's or senior's schedule. These courses are but a few of the innovations that characterize an ever-changing school world.



Accuracy in measurement is achieved by using the combination square. In a class at the vocational building, Robert Hubert and James Wright level metal for a V-Block.

Aerospace gives students training which later serves as a background for those who aspire to become pilots or stewardesses. Mr. Tucker, aerospace teacher, takes Phyllis Elder for a ride in an airplane, thus acquainting her with flying procedures.

In commemoration of the coronation of the Shah of Iran, History V students held their own election. Victor, Mason Spencer is crowned Shah by SCA president JoAnne Ruffa and is flanked by teacher Mrs. Patillo and Caroline Griffith.

Diversity Marks Student Development

Resulting from the departmentalization of the school, department offices were constructed which serve as a place for keeping records and also as a student-teacher conference room. English teacher, Mrs. Diane Owens, explains the revised course of study to Eleanor Challen, Karen Myers, Donna Ford, Barbara Daub, and Cindy Porter.

The social pinnacle of the year for juniors was their Ring Dance. Much planning went into the dance to create the New Orleans atmosphere of the theme, Mardi Gras.

Participation—Social And Civic

During SCA elections, presidential candidates Mark Sisisky and Helen Johnson along with campaigners Stewart Gamage and Jeannie Yates all try to convince voters Matt Carden and Lexi Arnold to choose the best candidate.

Student life is comparable to adult life in many ways. In our present system of student government, there are many ways for students to demonstrate their abilities as leaders. Every year the pupils of the school elect the officers and the representatives of the student council, the core of our government. The various grades, eighth through seniors, also elect their own class officers annually. At the American Legion Boys' and Girls' State Conventions held in June, representatives from the junior classes of all state schools meet and elect state SCA officials. Thus the teenagers have a democracy of their own, useful in preparing them for life in a democratic country when they, in a few years, become citizens.

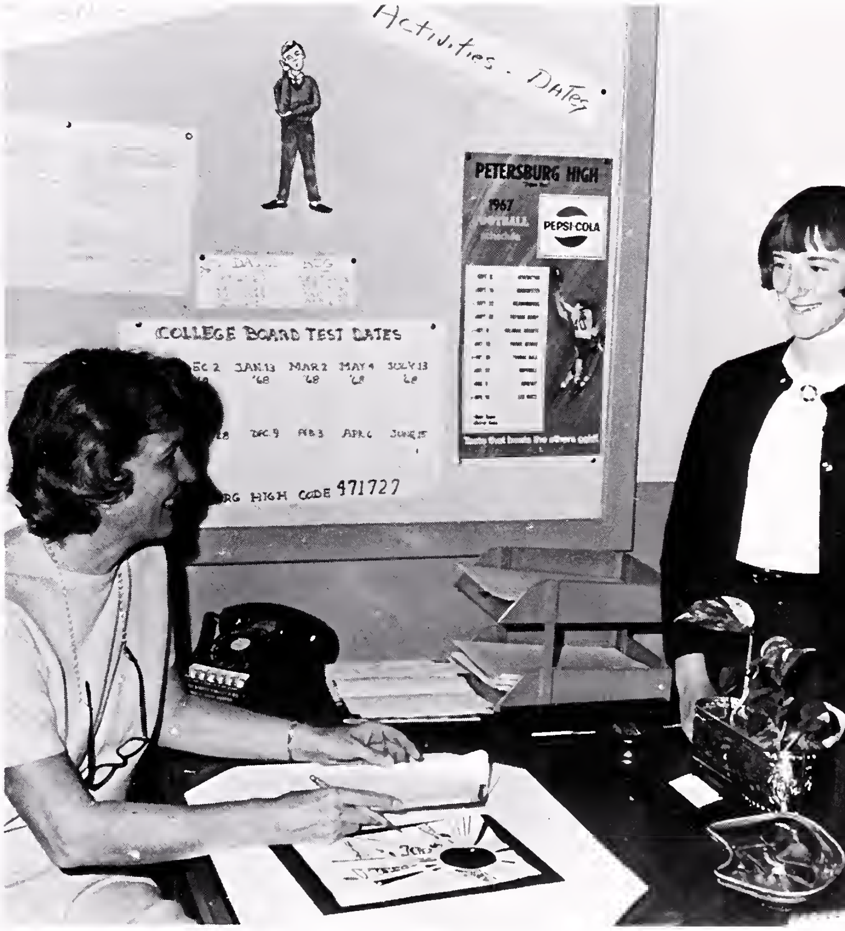
Entertainment and recreation are vital during the adolescent years to take a student's mind off his studies once in a while. The school sponsors three dances during the year along with many other recreational activities in which the students may participate. Athletics, pep rallies, assembly programs, productions of plays—all of these help to enrich the growing minds of 1500 pupils and to prepare these to face the problems and enjoy the pleasures of later life.

Today—The Anticipation Of Tomorrow

Our growth and development is further enhanced by the anticipation of its students of what is to become of them in later years. The keynote of a student's desire to learn and become active in school life is his hope to become successful upon graduation from high school. Success, of course, means something different to each individual. To some students success is getting into the college of one's choice and continuing his learning there. However, many students are satisfied knowing that upon graduation there is a job waiting for them, and thus their future is secure.

During these years, high in the student's mind is the anticipation of victory in the week's athletic event. All too soon, however, this carefree life must give way to the pressures an adult faces, and students prepare their applications to colleges and anticipate their acceptance.

Our world is chiefly a preparation, and its students are made ready for the cares and rewards of adult life as they, now only teenagers, reach maturity.



Every Senior must find time in his busy schedule to see a member of the guidance staff concerning colleges. Senior guidance counselor, Miss Mary Bailey, answers the many inquiries of Yvonne Sadler concerning college entrance requirements.

Anticipation of the evening's sporting event is in evidence at each Friday's spirited pep rally. The symbol of the Wave's spirit, the flag, was donated to the students by the Cockade Hi-Y. The Junior Class and the Gold Blazers sponsored the sale of the smaller replicas of this flag.

We Salute A Truly Dedicated Educator

Miss Evans marvels at the audacity of Mr. Alexander to interrupt her class while she teaches Hamlet.

The ability to express one's self clearly, in speaking and in writing, is perhaps the most useful gift anyone can possess. A knowledge and a love of the world's great literature is an accomplishment that will always be a source of pride and enjoyment. These are among the things which Miss Frances I. Evans has endowed to her students. To express our extreme gratitude to Miss Evans for her devotion as a teacher and for her dedication as the sponsor of the Missile is almost an impossible task. As a result of her travels to England and other European countries, she has made the settings of English literature come alive for her students. We can say only that her patience and help on this annual have helped to make it what it is today.

Miss Evans's wit, clear and sharp, has brightened many lessons. Few junior and senior English students can forget her dramatic interpretations of Poe, the Canterbury Tales, and Hamlet. The vitality and enthusiasm of her recitations have made literature more meaningful.

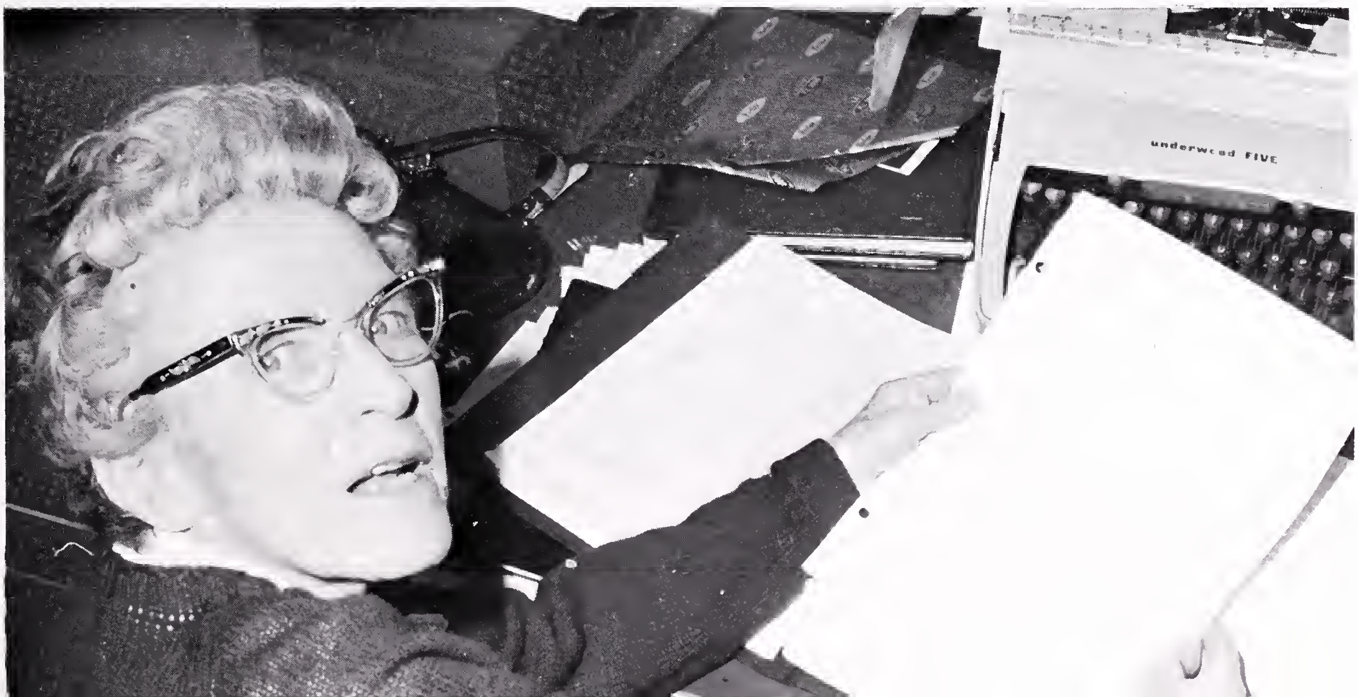
It seems appropriate that as Miss Evans is leaving Petersburg High, the Missile staff should give her a final salute—our thanks for the help she has given us. Miss Evans has given more to her students than knowledge; she has given them the will to learn, to seek, and to know. So with gratification the 1968 Missile staff proudly dedicates this yearbook to Miss Frances I. Evans, our teacher, sponsor, and friend.

Helping a student to understand the difficult 7A English course is a task which Miss Evans welcomes. Debbie Barney recites The Prologue to the Canterbury Tales as Miss Evans listens intently.

In the mornings Miss Evans can be found distributing forms from the office to her home base students. Only minutes later she will teach these students 8A English literature.

Our Teacher, Sponsor, And Friend

"A run-on sentence in a caption?" questions Miss Evans as she examines the Missile dummy. During her two free periods, she is always ready and willing to assist the staff in any way she can.



Each year art students work hard for many months for their annual salute to a country. In 1967 the students of this school were given the opportunity to visit Israel at the Art Building. Bo Cameron, Donna Arnold, Danny Davis, and Floyd Noon are illustrating the native dress of that country.

The world around which the whole school revolves is the academic world. Many able and skilled teachers using the latest teaching techniques help to instill in the students a knowledge of the world around them, coupled with a practical use of this knowledge.

This fiftieth anniversary year marks an era of change at Petersburg High. New courses have helped our growing student body to become educated in whatever field they wish to pursue. Within the last few years all courses have been equipped with the most modern teaching facilities, enabling the faculty to add interest and diversity to the course of study. Some students will fly an airplane or work with complicated machinery for the first time in their lives this year, giving them valuable experience in a field in which they may seek a career. With change our school continues to grow and develop, preparing its students for the procedure in a modern world.

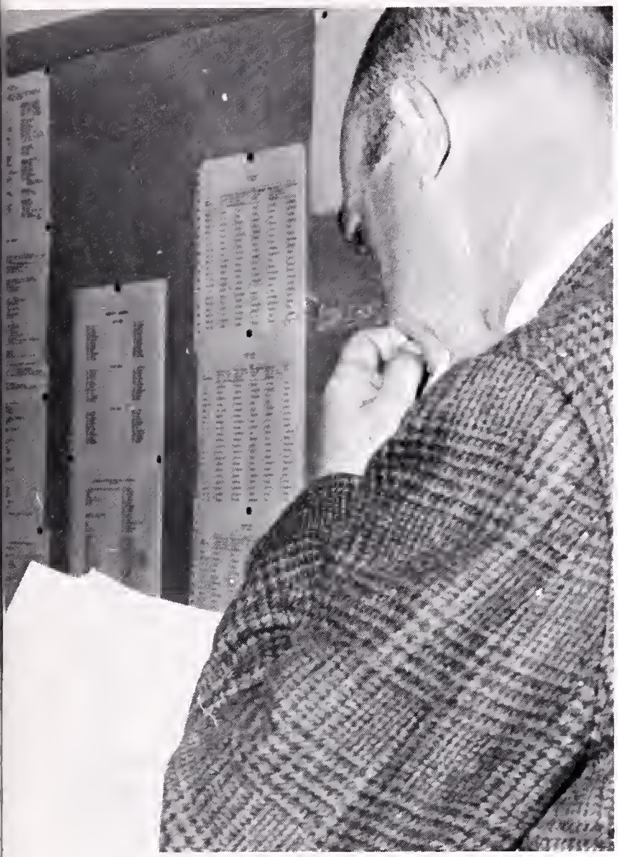
WORLD

New vistas of education are open to ninth grade science students this year. The scope of the general science course has been broadened to satisfy an inquiring mind. Students Becky Jones and Jan Harrell listen attentively to Mr. Gammon as he explains an experiment on image formation by a convex lens.

Keeping students and teachers up to date on activities and meetings, Mr. Betts fills the role of commentator on school life.

Administrative Call

At the end of a long and laborious day, Mr. Betts has time for a few moments of meditation.



As athletic director, Coach Churn confers with Coach Tyler about the schedule of coming football games.

Despite the stress and strain of his position as an assistant principal, Coach Churn is still able to retain his sense of humor.

For "Spirit, Change, And Attitude"

Hundreds of decisions, details, and students continually confront the helm of the "Golden Action Ship," the office. Meeting the needs of a large student body, our captain, Mr. Edwin M. Betts, recent president of the VEA, and our assistant principal, Mr. Robert G. Churn, along with a staff of efficient secretaries work towards providing our school with a capable administration.

Mr. Betts and Mr. Churn have both brought many innovations to PHS. These men have helped our school greatly in their support of the "spirit, change, and attitude" of the entire student body. Working with students and teachers, the administration has helped greatly in sailing a fit ship, PHS.

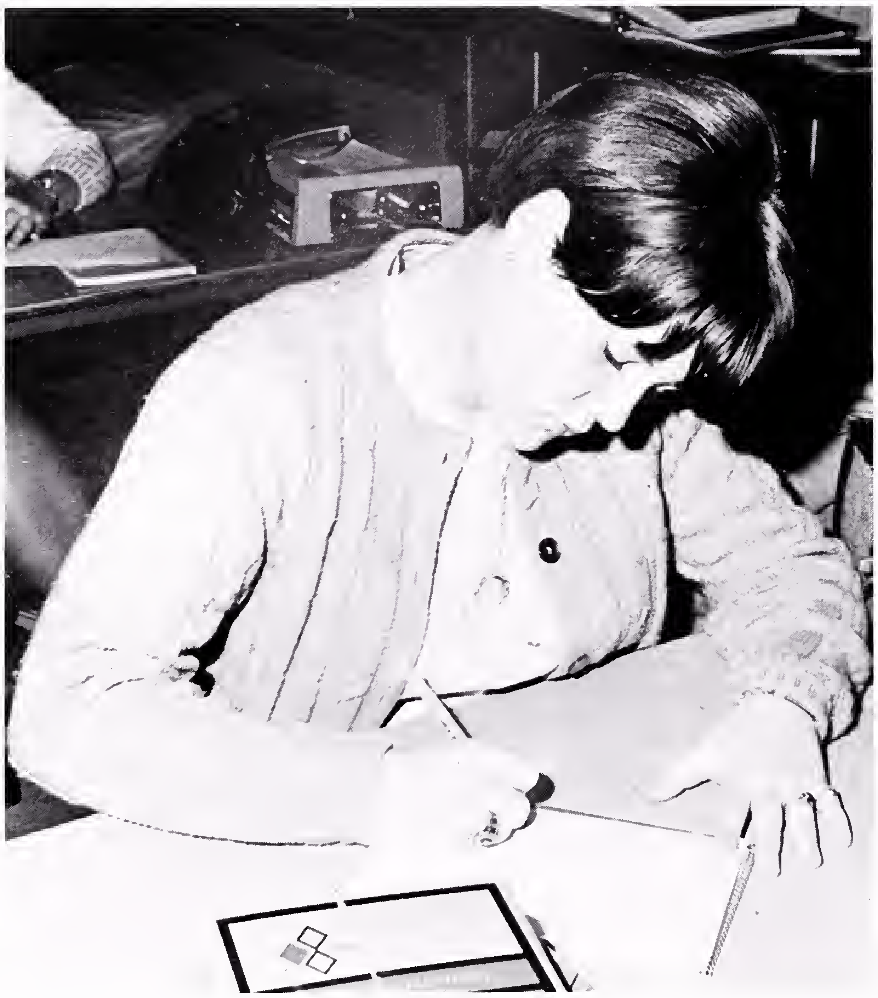
Preparation is a key word in the Business Education Department. This department aids in the preparation of the individual for employment upon graduation from high school in some type of business. Through studies in such areas as typing, bookkeeping, shorthand, and office practice, one comes in contact with efficient methods required for the successful operation of a business.

The business student's potential as a secretary or clerk is discovered and developed in operative studies such as office practice, which brings to the individual a cognizance of actual office procedure and the many machines which are involved. Skill in the use of these machines is an integral of the student's training.

Along with the learning process, business students aid other departments and clubs by willingly printing or duplicating upon request. Using the newly established business office, students become familiar with the complexity of the modern office.



Daily speed drills enable Janet Fisher to perfect her shorthand techniques.

Many innovations have occurred this year in all educational departments. Mrs. Davis is shown here using the new picture copy machine.

English Opens The Door To Thought

Patiently Mrs. Irvine helps Cindy Porter over the rough spots of her English 6A term paper.

Capacity to read, understand, and evaluate the ideas of others and to communicate one's own ideas are two of the most important abilities that can be developed in a liberal arts education. Effective participation in life depends on being able to appreciate the values of others and in turn to convey effectively one's own concepts. The English department attempts to impress each student with these ideas. In order to achieve this purpose, the student begins an intensive examination of the literature which has been passed down for centuries and of the literature which is being produced today, thus opening a complete new world which contains the ideas of famous writers and thinkers. Through the English courses offered, which involve grammar composition and creative writing, the student learns more effectively to communicate his knowledge and his ideas.

An innovation adopted by the department this year is the reading course designed to strengthen a student's reading ability through individual attention. All these are abilities which are indispensable in any occupation.

The Science Department, under the direction of Mr. James Sublett, offers a curriculum which includes general science, biology, chemistry, and physics. For the beginning science student, the department provides a course in general science to prepare him for more advanced and intensive study in specific fields. The biology course explores the essentials of botany and zoology with particular emphasis on human anatomy. In the biology lab, microscopes allow the students to investigate minute organisms not ordinarily studied, and dissection equipment make it possible for the students to study anatomy of both plants and animals. Both general science and biology are enhanced by actual living plants and animals housed within the science rooms. The chemistry program, by emphasizing chemical laws and principles, gives the student a comprehensive introduction to the composition and structure of every-day materials. Participation in lab encourages the student to discover the solutions to his own problems. The physics curriculum attempts to explain the fundamental principles of matter and energy in connection with its effect in mechanics, heat, light, sound, and electricity. By taking physics, a student especially develops his ability to analyze natural occurrences.

"Oh, no. Not another stack of papers to grade!" exclaims Mrs. Dupriest as Kandy Kahl watches her accept a fresh batch.

Exasperation dominates Mr. Sublett's expression as he searches for material necessary in his next experiment.

New Concepts Challenge Math Students

In addition to teaching math classes, Mr. Alexander devotes much time to developing pictures for the Missile.

The knowledge of mathematics is vital for anyone who wishes to progress in the ever-changing world. Because mathematics is a progressive study with new theories and techniques constantly being discovered, the mathematics department must adapt itself to meet the needs of the individual who wishes to apply his acquired knowledge. The curriculum of Petersburg High School is well suited for the ambitious student to grasp this necessary information. Courses are offered in elementary, intermediate, and advanced algebra and geometry, including analytics and trigonometry.

Petersburg High's well-trained mathematics teachers are also a great contributing factor in the education of the student. The modern student wants to know the why as well as the how of his work. With this kind of reasoning, the teacher guides the pupil progressively through his studies, making these technical skills more easily understandable.

Our hemisphere is rapidly advancing with the rush of the Space Age. To help the individual adjust to this world around him, the mathematics department is making every effort to consider the needs of students at all levels.

Languages Emphasize Global Understanding

Listening attentively to French tapes, Chuck Meroth repeats words and phrases to increase conversational proficiency in the language.

The increasing importance of languages can be seen in the re-vitalization of relationships between the nations of the world in which these languages are spoken. Also there is a greater emphasis than ever before on understanding among these nations, and it lies here that communication in the native tongue is most important. The Spanish and French languages, in addition to enabling us to communicate with the nations in South America, Africa, and Southeast Asia, also allows us to make ourselves heard and respected in the countries of Europe. The Latin language contains the historical and cultural heritage of Western thought. Not only does the literature of this classical tongue reflect the creative and philosophic spirit of the ancients, but also its study provides an excellent background for the mastery of the English language. This knowledge helps to form a well-rounded student, and the Language Department is aptly suited for the task.

Study Of History Develops Perspective

The world of the Civil War is still alive in Petersburg as students Larry Azlin and Joe Langley probe the ground with a metal detector for relics such as this cannonball.

History has a practical value in understanding the present, interpreting the past, and hoping for the future. Every day, events are taking place all over the world which will one day be recorded as history. What we gain from this record is dependent on our ability to link the past to the present. We should not look forward to the future with blind optimism, but with the realization that the knowledge that we gain by looking back will guide us in the future. In addition to history, a knowledge of geography familiarizes the student with the countries which are so vitally important to us today.

Government is one of the essential elements of social organization, because it exists to maintain our civilization, and without it democracy and culture are destroyed. Particularly in a democratic society such as ours, knowledge of the process of government is important. All of these—history, geography, and government—are offered for the benefit of the student's adjustment to the world today.

Allowing many talented young minds to express their thoughts is but one of the purposes of study in the creative arts. The curriculum is intended to create a cultural background for each individual, thus supplying a foundation upon which to build for the future.

Through such media of expression as choral music appreciation, each student grasps for better understandings of the great musical heritage with which we are endowed and the musical innovations which are now being imparted to us. In contrast to this vocal experience in the world of music, dexterity through diligent training is conveyed to each person by means of classes in instrumental music.

Applicable in many areas of the community, artistic ability brightens the world in which we live. Developing and creating more productive minds, art allows the student to view his environment in an entirely different perspective from that with which he has previously been acquainted.

Simplification of modern life has come about largely through the usage of more complex machinery and modern appliances. It is mandatory that one comprehend these machines in order to be assured of success in future years. Instruction through experience is a basic principle in the conveying of practical ideas from teacher to pupil.

For those who search for the acquisition of a basis for study in engineering or drafting, mechanical drawing teaches the student to be more perceptive as he views an object; he must then record his observations accurately by means of a formal drawing. Providing a creative atmosphere for the student, industrial arts permits him to gain applicable information through the creation of objects. Home economics provides the young girl with a working knowledge of phases of home life such as sewing, cooking, and nutrition. Through many rewarding experiences, the student is exposed to skills necessary to all homemakers.

Pre-Technical Program Designed To

The eighth and ninth grades Pre-Technical Vocational Program has been introduced to meet the needs of "capable average" students. It is designed to assist students who exhibit interest and ability in technically oriented fields, but who are not achieving at their expected level. The objectives are to provide a program which will prepare students for training and formal education at the post-high school level, and at the same time provide saleable skills for those who desire to terminate their formal education upon completion of high school.

The program will not be "watered down". Rather, it will require considerable effort on the part of students and teachers to interrelate the subjects presented; it demands deliberated plans of integrating and reinforcing English, physics and chemistry, mathematics through trigonometry and technical laboratories, including drafting and other technical specialities.

The curriculum will be executed in real learning situations; particularly in technical laboratories, where the student actively participates in each unit of work. This will maximize the student's commitment in the learning experience.

Thus, the program will be developed around a team-planning and team-teaching concept. In effect, the success of the program depends upon how well the teaching team and the students live up to their mutual contract.

Vocational Dept. Teaches Technical

Truly a world of its own, the Vocational Department, housed in a separate building off the main campus, is an extremely important part of our school. Vocational students are prepared for embarking on a career, whether it be a job in the retail field, a job requiring technological skills, or attending a college of vocation.

Courses such as Drafting and Design, Electronics, General Mechanics, Instrumentation, Machinist, Medical Assistant, or Practical Nursing all require that the student learn basic laws, principles, and fundamentals. Carrying his newly acquired knowledge one step further, the student must then use what he has learned through assignments like constructing a radio or correctly taking a patient's blood pressure. This is the true aim of education—to learn facts and then be able to use them.

Through Distributive Education and Industrial Cooperation, students are given the chance to develop their interest in merchandizing or industrial work. Before being placed in an actual situation, participants are instructed in the basic fundamentals of retailing, and industrial occupation. Having obtained a work schedule suitable to their needs, each student must also attend a certain number of classes. In this way he is actually working over time on his high school education.

Phys Ed Promotes Physical Well-Being

The aim of the Physical Education Department is not only to cultivate the living habits and to develop the physical well-being of the student, but also to provide personal enjoyment. Through the variety of activities offered during the year, the student is given a chance to develop and improve his skill and coordination. Personal satisfaction and enjoyment come when he is able to use these skills in competition with his classmates.

In conjunction with the physical education classes, health and first aid exist to explore the best methods of sickness and accident prevention and treatment. Driver education has an even greater importance since those exposed to it are the future motorists on our highways. During the summer, students are offered behind-the-wheel driver training which enables them to encounter actual driving situations.

The participation of the entire student body combined with the efforts of the many clubs and organizations helped to make our 1967 dramatic effort, Plain and Fancy, a smash hit. This presentation of "Plain We Live" was one of the highlights of the show.

Many clubs and various extracurricular activities in our school compose the activities world. The readiness of students to join clubs and their willingness to work for the school's two publications show that the students of PHS are willing to accept responsibility, a must in everyday life.

United under the leadership of our SCA Vice-President, the Inter-Club Council, which consists of organization heads, guides the clubs to success throughout the year. An Inter-Club Council-sponsored variety show was held this year in commemoration of fifty years at PHS, and sixteen clubs and organizations participated to make the event a success.

Participation is the key in the activities world, for it is through service that our alma mater can boast of a strong extracurricular program.

A world of activity is prevalent as various clubs make last minute preparations for the Fall Festival Parade. The Art Club, Odd Girls, and the band were only three of the many clubs which joined to make our Fall Festival an overwhelming success.

SCA Launches Nautical Theme For Year:

First Row: Mr. Zaruba. Last Row: C. Griffith, President J. Ruffa, J. Powell.

"Sail the Golden Action Ship" is the SCA theme for this year. The action ship set sail in August in preparation for the SCA sponsored Orientation Day. This was set up to allow the up-coming eighth graders and the new students to see Petersburg High School and to learn of the many phases of high school life. Another SCA project for this year has been the promotion of the activities calendar, which is a ten month calendar containing all school activities. Its purpose was to give the students and teachers an insight into all school functions scheduled for the year.

To help govern the school and to solve any problems that might arise is the main purpose of the Student Cooperative Association. One representative and alternate are chosen from each English class to serve on the council, which meets twice a month to discuss problems, reach conclusions, and keep the action ship on an even keel.

This year the SCA has formed an Executive Council consisting of all class presidents and the officers of the SCA. This council tries to meet more often than the Student Council, and it decides on possible solutions to problems and more ways in which the SCA can benefit the school.

"Sail The Golden Action Ship"

Having finished the planning for the eighth grade orientation, SCA sponsor, Mr. Zaruba, compliments President JoAnn Ruffa on a job well done.

Just before mid-term exams, the Inter-Club Council presented PHS through music—1917-1967. Student director Karen Myers quickly stuffs the big Golden Fifty before rehearsal.

While musicians await their cue, ICC President Jennie Belle Powell checks with a Quill and Scroll member as to the order of the club's line-up.

ICC Presents PHS Through Music 1917-'67

Performing a vital function in school activities, the Inter-Club Council becomes an industrious team. Striving to prevent activities from overlapping, the members, composed of the SCA vice-president and the presidents of all the school organizations, diligently try to accomplish their purpose.

Although much of their time is centered around this purpose, the energetic members with Mr. Zaruba as their able consultant participate in many annual projects. In early fall a Fall Festival Parade was presented with all the clubs participating. This year a Variety Show was held with "Fifty Years" as the golden theme. Proceeds from this help pay the costs of the annual spring play which the Inter-Club Council also sponsors.

During summer vacation, a summer workshop was held with the objective to give club presidents a better understanding in parliamentary procedures and methods to better the clubs' activities. Through these spirited projects, the student body and the action ship benefit.

Honor Society Mans School Supply Store

In its fifth year of existence, the Petersburg High School chapter of the National Honor Society continues to promote high standards of scholarship and citizenship and fulfill many school needs in its role as a service organization.

Membership in the society is considered a significant honor; for requirements for induction are stringent. Members, whose qualifications must be based on the organization's ideals of scholastic and personal merit, are chosen from the junior and senior classes by a committee of faculty members.

With the help of its sponsor, Mrs. Mildred Irvine, the Honor Society aids the school by ushering at meetings and conferences, helping in the administration of tests, and handling the sale of supplies in the book store. Thus, service is made the most dominant of the organization's goals of citizenship, leadership, scholarship, and service.

Monitors Maneuver Maddening Masses

Crowded conditions in our school are an ever-present and increasing problem. Meeting this challenge is the primary purpose of a student organization known as the Monitors Club, supervised by Mr. James Jean. Although directing student traffic, escorting classes to school assemblies, and assisting new students in finding classrooms are the general activities of the Monitors, they also assist teachers in administering standard tests throughout the year. Requirements for this opportunity to serve the school are simply satisfactory grades, good school citizenship, and approval by the principal.

Sponsored within the state by Virginia Polytechnic Institute and locally by Mr. Jimmy Sublett, the Virginia Junior Academy of Science is intended to provide an outlet for students interested in the various sciences. Genuine interest and willingness to participate are the only requirements for membership.

Its plans include sending a delegation to the annual convention, entering in local and state science fairs, and developing projects on an individual basis. Possibly the greatest advantage provided by the club is the availability of school and industrial laboratory facilities for development of projects. Though the VJAS is the newest organization at Petersburg High, its plans for the future are at the highest level of interest.

'68 Missile Immortalizes School Year

Tucked away in a small niche up on the third floor, the staff of Petersburg High's yearbook, the Missile, works assiduously to compile some 224 pages of literary genius. This photographic journal of the 1967-'68 school year is enhanced by larger and better pictures than ever before, accompanied by that hard-to-obtain copy which drained so much energy from the staff.

Working hours were long. Few section editors will forget those hours during the week and on weekends from early morning until late at night, writing and typing those last pages before the deadlines. Those were trying hours, but the culmination of it all—the delivery of the Missiles made it all worthwhile.

Hundreds of candids were used, for the photographic staff made them readily available by always appearing on the scene with a camera in hand, ready to catch the action. There was a multitude of film rolls to develop and print, which kept them in the dark room a great deal of the time.

Then there were the editors and many assistants who concentrated on laying out the pages and waiting anxiously for their proofs to be returned. In them was an enthusiasm which is indescribable, and despite all the well-remembered obstacles, they were a dedicated group of aspiring journalists.

Surely the student body and neighboring merchants have had tremendous faith in the Missile, for never was circulation higher or patronage more enthusiastic. A highlight of the year for the staff was the New York trip for the editors to Columbia Scholastic Press Association, where the '67 Missile received a first place rating, and staff members learned new and valuable ideas which have greatly benefited the production of this yearbook.

Student life editor and champion photographer Mary Paige Abeel focuses the camera on the team, much to the amusement of shadow and assistant, Carol Sue Jackson.

Members of the editorial staff are as follows:
Seated: M. Abeel, B. Cliborne, Editor B. Weiner, P. Elder. Standing: J. Comstock, A. Jacobs, S. Booth, E. Ellis, M. Marsh, D. Barney, J. Elmore, B. Hall.

Members of the advertizing staff are as follows:
First Row: D. Evans, B. Caro, Business Manager S. Laffoon, B. Basl, H. Johnson.

Layout editors Joe Elmore, Brian Drebber, and Andy Deekens labor to complete academics for the November deadline.

A final "Yes, this is fine," from Missile advisor Miss Evans is the go-ahead signal Debbie Barney needs to complete her section of the yearbook. Mrs. Lampman observes from the sideline keeping 1969 in mind.

First Row: N. Plott, Editor D. Ford, K. Myers, J. Fisher. Second Row: F. Scott, D. Tassell, M. Sisisky, Mrs. Owens. Last Row: T. Thomas, R. Conway, M. Pierce.

Everything from sports to contemporary novels is covered by the Petersburg High Review, which is published eleven times yearly. Being the composite voice of the student body, the Review does much to enhance the meaning and enjoyment of the high school experience. Its main purpose is keeping students informed of school and social activities, athletic events, and administrative policies. In addition, many entertaining and enlightening articles are published in each issue.

Anyone interested in journalism is eligible to work on the Review staff. One only needs to display his ability before he can become a part of this organization.

Of special importance is the convention held by SIPA in Lexington, Virginia, which recognizes and commends outstanding high school newspapers. Each year the Review is entered into competition. Accompanying the newspaper are the editors, who learn about new ideas which will help produce a more outstanding paper.

"This picture has to fit in this space," mutters Sports Editor Howard Brown to himself as he draws up a page for the Review.

Key Club—The Leaders Of Tomorrow

Key Club Sweetheart for 1968 is Anne Roper.

In high schools across the nation, Key Club is synonymous with outstanding conduct and exemplary citizenship. This subsidiary of Kiwanis International brings together a cross section of the finest and most responsible boys in the school. Invitations for membership are extended only to those boys who maintain a scholastic average of eighty-five or above, but an even more important prerequisite for potential members is good school citizenship. Standards for candidates are restrictive only to insure that each new member is willing to live up to the club's motto of "We Build."

Key Club members are called upon to carry out various community services, including working with local charities, such as the United Fund. Being quite active in school, they take charge of car parking detail, Christmas tree sales, and school clean-up operations.

A special yearly event is the selection of a junior girl to represent the boys as Key Club Sweetheart. She is chosen on the basis of personality, appearance, and her desire to help the school.

Key Club members Skipper Booth and Mark Sisisky, alias Sam and Dave, shake up the year 1967 with several soul selections, such as "Midnight Hour" in the Inter-Club Council Variety Show.

Journalistic Endeavors Recognized

The Quill and Scroll Honor Society honors distinguished juniors and seniors who have displayed outstanding loyalty and participation in literary achievements. Membership is by special invitation, and nominations are made by both sponsors of the Missile and Review and by Quill and Scroll members.

Sponsoring the Quill and Scroll Corner and the Book Review section in the Review are two important projects of the club. Held in the spring is the book-review tea where new members become acquainted with the ideals of the club. Participating in other literary activities, the Quill and Scroll provides its members with many opportunities to utilize their talents.

Library Assistants Keep Shelves Stocked

Rendering much service to their school is the Library Staff, presently headed by Mrs. Rhea Dodge. Members are those who volunteer their services as well as time in order to accomplish much work throughout the day.

Checking out books, keeping the shelves in proper order, and managing the desk are several of the major duties performed by these girls. This group plays a valuable part in school life because of such continuous efficiency. The girls composing the staff aid the librarian by proving that they are able to operate the library well.

Repeated experience in reshelving books acquaints Clarice Petersen and Pat Towsend with the variety of volumes available to students.

Perfection In Projection Prevalent

In a school where tradition and spirit are heightened by the celebration of a fiftieth anniversary, the value of man's history takes on added significance for our students. Equally important to them are the literary and technological advances being made everyday. With the modern educational processes of today, the events of treasured history and fast-paced present are often brought to the students in motion pictures, slides, and recordings. The presentation of all of these in Petersburg High School is made possible by the projection crew.

Boys from all grades make up this service organization. Each member has taken a special course on the techniques of projection, and is eligible to project films produced by a nationally known corporation. When teachers wish to show a film to a class, these boys are called upon to give up their free time to insure that all audio-visual aids are professionally administered.

What! Another Central District Trophy?

If there is any one group in school that produces the most individual school spirit, the Varsity Club would have to be the first to come to mind. Each member's position in the club has been obtained by earning a varsity letter in one or more sports. That in itself is a stupendous feat, requiring more time, energy, and devotion than any other activity in school.

It is to the club's credit that such students, who have given so much to the school in sports, also have united to devote still more time and energy in the school's service. Major activities of the Varsity Club include such things as the distribution of Christmas baskets, appearance in the Christmas parade, taking over a local gas station for a day to earn money, and sponsoring an athletics banquet at the end of each year.

"Only one more load!" sighs Allen Bristow as other Varsity Club members Howard Brown, Danny Wilkerson, and Richard Earl help pack the car with more Christmas baskets.

Like little boys at Christmas time, Howard Brown, Fletcher Brazwell, and Danny Wilkinson look at the awesome array of trophies which the mighty Wave has gathered over the past years.

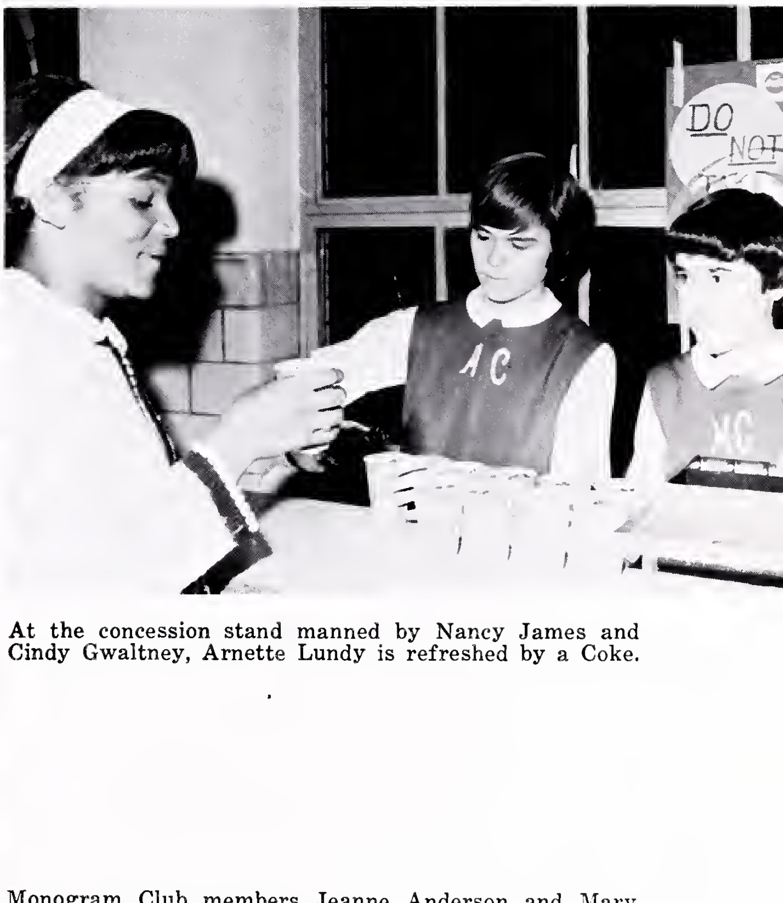
Monogram Club members exhibit a vigorous and positive spirit for their school. With Miss JoAnne Kiser as their sponsor, these girls strive to fulfill their goals—encouraging attendance at games and promoting better sportsmanship between individuals, teams, and schools. Other basic purposes include serving the school and community and stimulating interest for greater participation in girls' sports.

Their activities in school life are greatly varied. Selling drinks at home basketball games and annually cleaning the trophy case are only two of their projects. Their most important community service in which they engage is collecting items for Christmas baskets for the needy.

Any girl who has lettered in either basketball or softball is eligible to join. Participation in one sport each year is required to retain one's membership.



At the concession stand manned by Nancy James and Cindy Gwaltney, Arnette Lundy is refreshed by a Coke.

With a flare of gold, pep club members have displayed and aroused an abundance of spirit, which has continued to increase through PHS's golden existence. To carry out their purpose, members display posters supporting sports, attend and support pep rallies and games, and decorate the Crimson Wave goal posts at Cameron Field. In addition to this, the sale of spirit flags and balloons has helped promote enthusiasm even more.

Besides being a pep club, this group aids the school in other ways by serving as cheerful ushers on College Night and Parents' Day. Also, senior gold blazers are honored at an annual breakfast banquet held in the spring.

Membership is restricted, but can be attained in several ways. From each eighth grade home base a girl is elected to this group. Finalists and semi-finalists in cheerleading and finalists in majorette competition also become members, and certain upperclassmen are elected to the club.

These lively girls are strong individuals and have proved themselves very important to school life.

Luncheons, Teas, Fall Festival Floats—

With a desire to be useful to society and to enliven school spirit, three different organizations have been formed. By special invitations approved by members, many girls who are active in school life are asked to join.

The Square Circle Honor Society is busily engaged in many activities through the year. Members hold a Silver Tea in December and a fashion show in spring, besides acting as hostesses to the Teachers' Club meetings and a gathering of these three social groups.

To promote honor and better sportsmanship constituted the purpose of the Odd Girls' Club. Complying with their name "Odd Girls'," there is an odd number of members whose annual projects include sponsoring a Christmas Party at the City Home and presenting a picture to the school.

Bestowing the Mary T. Perkins Latin Award to the third or fourth year Latin student with the highest average is the main project of Goober Pep. Besides functioning as a social club, its purpose is to enhance student participation.

With Goober Pep's sign being droopy, Karen Myers's father assists in raising it up while members of the club's freak show stand ready to climb aboard the float.

Y-Council—Governing Body of Hi-Y Clubs

Being the governing body of Hi-Y and Tri-Hi-Y clubs, the Y-Council plans the programs, discusses the problems, and helps the individual clubs accomplish their various activities and projects. Composing the membership in this Council are all the officers of the three Hi-Y clubs.

Two main functions of the Y-Council are the sponsoring of the Thanksgiving Assembly and the exchanging of the friendship trophy between Hopewell and Petersburg high schools at the annual football game. Each year the Y-Council nominates representatives from the Hi-Y's to attend the Model General Assembly held in the spring.

Members of Pence Tri-i-Y are as follows: First Row: S. Carden, G. Williams, J. Howard, L. Laderach, D. Hare, D. Hare, C. Jackson. Second Row: N. Akers, B. Winston, D. Burke, F. Tyler, V. Hi-Y's Promote Christian Fellowship

Extending to all students an opportunity for enjoyment for the individual and expansion in the community, these three Hi-Y clubs exemplify high principles. Membership is open to all students who are willing to uphold their high standards.

Each club performs annual projects which benefit the community or serve as money-making projects. K-Warner Tri-Hi-Y sponsors a car wash, while Pence Tri-Hi-Y goes Christmas carolling at the Petersburg City Home. Manning the soft drink stand at home baseball games is traditionally performed by Cockade Hi-Y.

These clubs also participate in school activities. By singing in the Variety Show and by sponsoring a float in the Fall Festival Parade, their dedication to PHS is justly shown.

Perhaps the most significant project of the year is the Model General Assembly. Representatives from these clubs attend this weekend meeting in Richmond, Virgina, which is a mock General Assembly. A wealth of knowledge concerning operations of the Virginia Government is gained by all who attend.

First Row: Mrs. House, K. Kahl, S. Laffoon, M. Fox, M. Stronach, P. Anderson, President D. Barney. Second Row: N. Lancaster, B. Burch, J. Ruffa, C. Griffith, D. Ford, K. Myers, N. Halloway, J. Comstock. Last Row: B. Caro, A. Deekens, L. Bassman, D. Slay, A. Zatcoff, J. Elmore, M. Pierce.

Under the enthusiastic direction of Mrs. House, French students in Le Cercle Francais participate in various projects to broaden their view of the culture and life in France. Students who have completed one semester of French are eligible to join. These members learn about the French people, their customs, and their ideals. Through films, speeches, and slides, the French language becomes a valuable asset, rather than an ordinary subject.

Although the members are primarily concerned with France, they also participate in school functions such as the Fall Festival parade and the variety show. Projects are closely related with the French language and people, and they include having discussions with guest speakers, singing in French, and having an annual Christmas Party.

Spanish Club Joins In Native Customs

In order to gain a closer relationship with the culture and general aspects of Spain and other Spanish-speaking countries, the Spanish Club was organized. Those students who have had one semester of Spanish may join. Members learn about the countries, customs, and people through guest speakers and vistors from the Spanish-speaking countries. They are entertained by playing games and by singing Spanish songs. Their activities are primarily concerned with their chosen country; however, they do participate fully in school activities such as singing in the Variety Show and having a float in the Fall Festival Parade.

Singing a medley of songs from the musical Carousel, the French and Spanish Clubs join voices to "If I Loved You." This is only one example of the participation of the student body in the Inter-Club Council Show, which was presented in an effort to raise money for the spring production of South Pacific.

Long a club on the move, the Art Club has been one of the busiest and most active this year. As a service organization its members have had a hand in many of the important events of the school year.

Early in the fall these aspiring artists readied the school's many bulletin boards for Orientation Day and the beginning of school. They also dashed off many posters announcing school projects and upcoming events. Epitomizing the dedication of Petersburg High clubs were the members of the Arts Club who spent one rainy September night in a cold garage creating a float for the Fall Festival Parade that weekend.

Money-raising projects included the sale of candy and paper-mache candlesticks for Christmas and the Central Park Art Exhibit sale. Money from these projects financed the club's trip to Washington. D. C., where they toured the Phillips and Corcoran Galleries. Other highlights of the trip included lunch at the zoo and a visit to the National Wax Museum, where several art clubbers met and talked with President Johnson — in the wax, of course.

Prerequisites for membership in this club are the passing of a special test and willingness to work. New this year was the Associate Junior Art Club whose members form a group which works closely with the others on special projects.

Art club members Mepes Johnson, Mary Paige Abeel, and Joe Elmore demonstrate their creativity as they construct antiqued candlesticks, an Art Club project.

MADAME ZANDA
the Human Pin Cushion

"Take a chance on our wheel of fortune," cries the unseen barker, "and take this real live bunny home as a prize." Circus member Donna Arnold stands by to care for "Bunny" Betty Jo Hall at the Fall Festival Parade.

A new facet of the Art Club is the Associate Junior Art Club known as AJAC. Its members often rush to the aid of school publicity by concocting posters and signs for up-coming events.

The latest news in the business world can be obtained at a meeting of the Commercial Club. It was organized to help the business students better understand the importance of business in everyday life. Serving the school by selling Petersburg High School stickers and by participating in school activities are two of the club's projects.

Requirements for membership are few. A girl needs only to have taken and completed one business course before she is eligible to join.

DECA Gives Students Practical Job Training

DISTRIBUTIVE EDUCATION

AMERICA

DECA makes the scene with a Fall Festival float. Mike Mays, president, speaks to the club while a cash register tallies retail sales in the background.

Offering leadership opportunities and school activities to working students who otherwise could not participate in extra-curricular activities is the Distributive Education Clubs of America. Members gain personal experience through part-time jobs while continuing their education. Membership is highly recommended for those in the Distributive Education course as participants gain professional training in salesmanship, advertising, and interviewing.

Since members are part-time workers, breakfast meetings are held monthly at which guest speakers present talks on topics such as retailing and marketing. These civic-minded students are very active in all aspects of the business field. Participation in District, State, and National Contests which concern marketing functions is very keen, and Petersburg High students have rated high in a great majority of them. One of their activities is sending several delegates to the annual DECA Conference which is held in Richmond, Virginia. They also participate along with other local schools in the DECA convention held in an area school. Perhaps their most exciting event is the annual Employer-Employee Banquet, which is held in the spring and to which DECA members invite their employers.

Vocational Opportunities Are Plentiful

Since the emphasis on vocational training has increased in recent years, a new type of club has been developed. This type is exemplified by the Vocational Industrial Clubs of America which has organized trade, technical, and industrial students. Golden opportunities are offered to students by establishing realistic vocational goals and by helping them attain higher standards in their field. Each member can increase and improve his skills through this organization.

Sponsored by Mr. Aldredge, club members promote high levels of leadership, workmanship, and ethics in all the various vocations. Although membership isn't compulsory, all students enrolled in industrial and trade classes are urged to join.

Outgoing, dedicated individuals who have a genuine interest in music comprise the Glee Club. These students fulfill their purpose, which is to gain a better understanding and appreciation of music through active projects. Through competitive tryouts at the beginning of each semester, the members are chosen. A program at Fort Lee also has appeared as a major program for the past few years for this modern group.

Two selective groups in the Glee Club are the Girls' Ensemble and the Pro Musica Ensemble. Each performs for various civic groups, churches, and organizations. Dressing formally for their performances, is the Pro Musica Ensemble, who are noted for singing music of a very early period. Each group adds sparkle and color to school and community life.

Striking a graceful pose, Kathy Morini exhibits her dancing talents while performing to "Alice Blue Gown."

With a rustling of music, the Glee Club prepares to perform at the Christmas Concert.

Batons, Smiles Flashed At Halftime

Performing intricate routines, the majorettes are an attractive element seen at both pep rallies and football games. With positions on a competitive basis, these ten members are talented, lively students whose presence boost school spirit with their flashing batons and sparkling smiles. Members are selected by band officers and the present majorettes. Four alternates are also chosen to participate in the Christmas Parade and other festivities. Being an important unit of the band, the majorettes add spice and color to the spirit of PHS.

Keeping in step, majorettes Kathy Kutsher and Barbara Weiner present an entertaining and lively routine for Cameron Field entertainment.

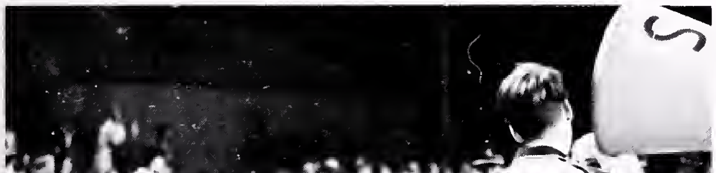
Band Brings Enthusiasm To Football Games



Encouraging the Wave to victory, the band and majorettes arouse a lasting spirit throughout the football games.

The most difficult and also the most rewarding hours for the band do not arrive until after the Concert Band has been formed. This group, slightly smaller than the Marching Band, collaborates with the Glee Club for the Christmas Concert and the Pops Concert, performs at several assemblies, and presents the Annual Spring Concert.

Within recent years the need has arisen for a stage band or pit orchestra at PHS. This is a small group, consisting of several musicians from the Concert Band, which provides the instrumental music for such functions as the Inter-Club Council Show, the Junior Miss Pageant, and the annual school musical.

Throughout the football season, the Petersburg High School Marching Band, which consists of over a hundred members, is always on hand to help support the team, as well as to provide pre-game and halftime entertainment. Whether the band is performing a halftime show, providing added spirit from the sideline, or playing the National Anthem, the members always strive to sustain the high standards which have been set by bands of previous years. For those occasions, such as pep rallies, which require a smaller ensemble, the Pep Band, a group of about twenty boys, supplies the music.

Our band director, Mr. Ralph Stronach, who is now in his twenty-sixth year at PHS, is looked upon by his band members not only as a fine and capable leader and musician, but also as an inspiration.

Providing exuberant music for pep rallies, the Pep Band enhances the spirit of the students in supporting the mighty Wave.

The basketball team opens its 1967-1968 season at home in "Wave" country against the Meadowbrook Monarchs. Ven Johnson leaps for the jump ball as Ronnie Wiley, Phil Simmons, and Mike Wilson anxiously await the tip-off.

Students are ever willing to represent the school in its world of sports. A great spirit, shown by attendance at pep rallies and games, has spread through the student body and increased in the past year. The players out on the field or court can do little without support, and we have given them this needed thrust.

In return the teams rewarded our efforts by giving us a share in the Central District football title for three out of the last four years, and by playing an excellent basketball season this year. However, united effort is necessary for success in the sports world; as shown in past years, the sports which attracted spectators had the most success. To do our great school justice, we should support all sports, and we will achieve renown in all of our efforts.

SPORTS WORLD

Behind Tommy Warren's blocking, the Wave's Riddle Hines meets his Lee-Davis opponent head on, in a play typical of that hard-hitting game. The Wave prevailed 26-0 to clinch a tie for the Central District championship.

Hitters And Hurlers Encounter Problems

A major portion of the Wave's plate power was supplied by clutch hitter Bruce Honeycutt.

Lack of experience and the inability to combine pitching and hitting accounted for this year's showing in baseball. The Wave finished on a high note, however, by winning three of the last five games, with Richard Earl coming through with a brace of roundtrippers in the last two games. These late season wins included an exciting 4-3 victory over Patrick Henry, and though tough, over Hopewell and Lee Davis.

The Crimson Wave was led by four-year letterman and captain Rudy Hawkins, who provided much of the punch at the plate. Bruce Honeycutt and Charles Wall backed up the offensive attack with key hits.

Tommy Hodnett and Rodney Crowder handled most of the mound chores for the team. Lee Roy Heath was outstanding in relief. Crowder will be returning the next two years to form a sound nucleus for the pitching staff.

Golf Team Completes Successful Season

The 1967 Petersburg High School Golf Team, with the aid of a hot streak at the end of the season, finished the year with an 8-6-1 record. The Wave linksmen came on strong in the clutch winning five straight matches. Included in the season was an unusual tie against Huguenot, the second since the golf team's inception.

Danny Fisher, one of the truly outstanding golfers produced by Petersburg, again led the team. He served as captain and completed his fourth year of competition. Backing up Danny were Jim VanLandingham, Vincent Hardy, Mac Jones, Skip Booth, and Craig Parrish.

Although most of the team will be lost to graduation, there are several promising prospects coming up to meet the challenge.

Three School Records Fall To Trackmen

Because of a lack of participation by the students of P.H.S., the track team again worked under a handicap this season. This fact accounted for the poor team showing, but, as in past years, individual stars continued to shine.

Several school records were eclipsed including the shot put, discus, and triple jump. Howard Brown shattered the shot put with a heave of 49 feet six inches, and also threw the discus 144 feet one inch. Bob Antozzi broke the triple jump record with a jump of 41 feet. These boys together with Roland Parsons, Alton Haynes, and Keith Barker formed the core of the team.

In addition to the shortage of manpower, the team's uniforms were stolen before the beginning of the season, presenting another problem.

The boys who did participate still gave 100% and with a little support, track could be returned to its former status at Petersburg.

1967 District Co-Champs

Leaping in front of his opponent, Riddle Hines intercepts a Lee-Davis pass.

Compiling a record of 9-1-1, the Petersburg High School Crimson Wave football team completed another highly successful season under coach Bobby Tyler. Along the way, the Wave picked up a share of the Central District championship, and took part in the first Central Regional Playoff game.

The keys to the Wave's success were an explosive offense led by standout Ronnie Erb, and a tenacious defense that yielded only forty points in eleven games, and shut out six opponents. Erb retained his state scoring crown with twenty-five touchdowns for 150 points. He carried the ball 254 times for 1,617 yards, and an average of 6.4 yards per carry. Ronnie also handled the punting for the team, averaging 38.6 yards per kick. This all-around player was also a co-captain, and was voted the most outstanding high school player in the state.

Also doing an outstanding job in the backfield were Riddle Hines, Tommy Warren, James Black, and quarterback Danny Wilkerson, who fired eight touchdown passes.

The defensive line, consisting of Allen Bristow, Richard Earl, James Wilkins, Richard Hill, and Bob Antozzi, backed up by linebackers Howard Brown, Fletcher Braswell, and James Black was one of the best in the state. An alert defensive secondary, composed of Erb, Hines, and Stokes Hill picked off six opposing passes.

For their outstanding play during the season, Ronnie Erb, Howard Brown, Richard Earl, and Riddle Hines, were named to the All-Central District team. Best of all, because of the Wave's third district title in four years, Petersburg fans can continue to yell, "We're number one!"

Cheerleaders Reflect Wave Spirit

With high expectations, exuberant cheerleaders show their spirit and devotion as the mighty Wave crashes through the "Beat Lancer" banner.

"Go Wave, Fight Wave, Win this game tonight" is the motto of all these sprightly students. These two groups of girls and boys have a deep feeling for their school, and with their boundless energy they encourage spirit at pep rallies and games. Many of their afternoons are spent for the purpose of creating enthusiasm and in preparation for the upcoming game.

Their main objectives are to create in every student school spirit, good sportsmanship, a sense of fair play and respect for the other team.

Every spring, competitive tryouts are held, and each girl is judged on personality, pep, personal appearance, and her ability to execute a cheer. Boys are selected on service and the amount of spirit which they have for their school. During the year, each is required to maintain an eighty-five average. Through these very active students, the spirit of PHS rides high with the Crimson Wave.

Wave Posts Record Season

A frequent starter for the Wave, Ven Johnson shows his poise despite the harassment of two Royals.

Basketball soared to an all time high at Petersburg as the 1967-1968 Crimson Wave completed a tremendous 14-2 season. It was the best season in coach Bob Kilbourne's twenty-four year tenure at PHS. Only losses to regular season champion Manchester and tournament champion Hopewell marred the Wave's record. Petersburg rebounded from its earlier loss to the Blue Devils to post a 69-67 victory over them later in the season.

Hustle, determination, and teamwork made the difference in this year's team. Captain Philip Simmons, Richard Earl, Ven Johnson, and Mike Wilson were the only players who had seen previous action. Simmons, Earl, and Ronnie Wiley provided the Wave's scoring power, while Wilson demonstrated great ability as an outside shot and ball handler. Defense, however, was the keynote of the team's success, as Petersburg allowed fewer points than any other team in the Central District.

Special credit must be given to Bill Whitten and Leon Fisher, who came up from a fine JV team to help fill the vacancies left by the mid-term graduation of John Jenkins and Sherman Fisher.

In the Central District Tournament, the Wave fell victim to a fired up Colonial Heights team 52-48. Nevertheless, their regular season record stands as a testament of one of the most outstanding basketball teams in many years at Petersburg High.

SEND COLONIALS BACK ... To Side

Wave fans proudly display their spirit and determination to "send the Colonials back to the other side of the river" scoreless. This spirit and enthusiasm was rewarded by a 20-0 victory over Colonial Heights.

Of our world the student world composes a fundamental part. The desire of each student to become an important part of our school has helped to build the ever growing spirit of the student body. To excel in an adult world, the student must first excel in the first phase of adult life, the high school world.

In Petersburg High the student is given this chance to excel through varied activities keyed to the individual's interests. The planning of a pep rally or the success of a football season are all due to student participation. Thus, student life is directly responsible for the expansion of a teenager's scope of interests and the development of his mind during these formative years.

Cheerleaders Bruce Cliborne and Mark Sisisky and Gold Blazer president, Ann Jacobs, prepare for a pep rally after school. The spirit invoked by the pep club with signs and posters throughout school and the devotion of these boy cheerleaders has identified PHS as a school of individuality and creativity.

Spirit generated by loyal Petersburg supporters is concentrated in their attentiveness to the Patrick Henry game proceedings.

Student Life

Beginning the experience of education after a three months' absence is a difficult task, one which is facilitated by the enthusiasm of the students, faculty, and administration. The first day, the first football game, the first test—all these are important in the preparation of impressionable youth, youth who will someday be responsible leaders in world affairs.

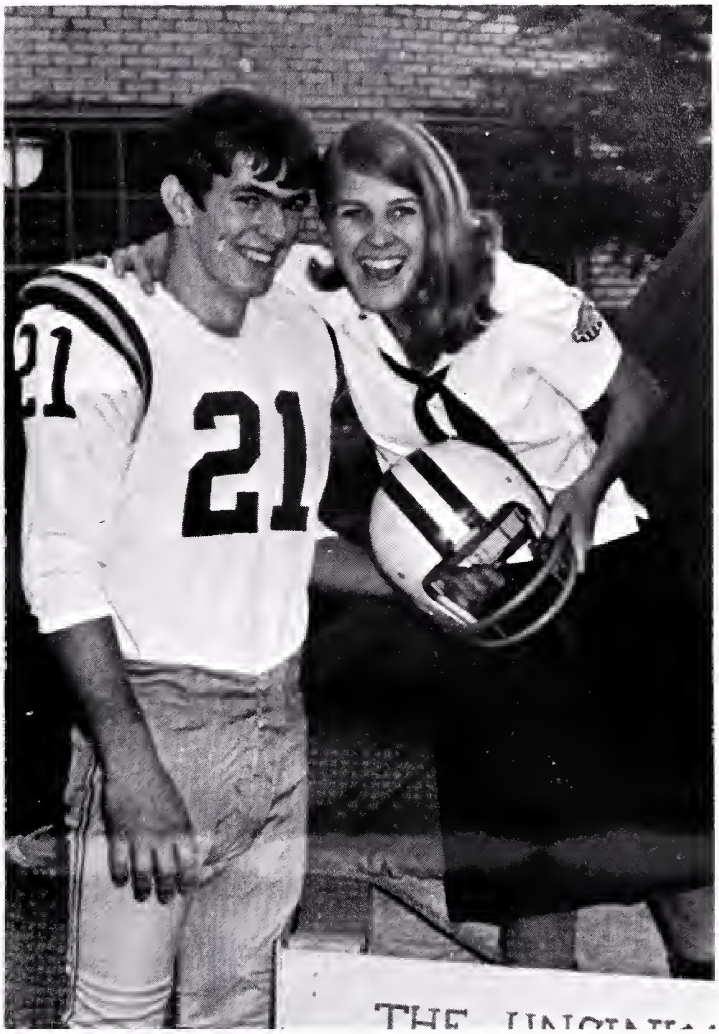
School Spirit—Invisible Unifying Force

In every school there is an intangible force which creates unity among the students, faculty, and administration. This invisible factor is spirit. Spirit is what makes a school great—the exuberant spirit which boosted the football team to an undefeated season, the unselfish spirit which caused the student body to make record contributions to the needy at Christmas time, the willing spirit which has contributed so much to the production of plays and concerts.

Petersburg High School has a tremendous spirit which attests to this fact. With a wonderful heritage of outstanding students achieving academically, athletically, and musically, our alma mater is sure to have a glorious future.

Each Friday afternoon before the game, pep rallies are held at various places around the school. This traditional spot, the front steps, was the location of the season's first pep rally, which included the introduction of the Unsinkable Wave.

Preceding the game, cheerleaders spend a few moments on the bench before lifting their megaphones in a victory cheer.



Head cheerleader Stewart Gamage gives a special salute to our most athletic senior Ronnie Erb — her thanks for his twenty-five touchdowns for 150 points scored this season.

The spirit of our faculty is exemplified in the face of Miss Bailey as she watches that last touchdown.

On the sidelines the countenances of Mark Pierce, Tommy Thomas, and Vic Augustine are found taking pictures and making sports notes for the Review.

Two congenial seniors, Caroline Griffith and Frank Avery, generate their brand of spirit by visiting Santa during the yuletide season.

Accompanying the senior class excursion to Duke, Mr. Kimmel, a chaperone in his own right, proves an ardent follower of the game's progress.

School Year In Retrospect

A year is a series of events. In a school year the events officially begin with the opening of school in September and culminate with graduation in June. Yet between these two terminal events there is a multitude of notable events, ranging from trivial to spectacular to serious. Christmas, recognized by many as midpoint, affects school life both by holiday preparation beforehand and also by periods of recovery afterwards. Lesser highlights are taking a TB test, battling with books for weeks on end, and the discovery of a quiet moment after a game. These are but vignettes of an entire year, a mere insinuation of related events—events which are transformed by time into memories.

With great expectations of good health, Miss Morgan, receiving her innoculation against TB, bears the pain bravely.

Variety—The Spice Of School Life

During the course of a school year at Petersburg High School, anything can happen—and usually does. What other school has a dramamine pill dispensary at its door, the gangplank to Nora's Ark, alias the Golden Action Ship? Does any other school have a balloon-filled auditorium, a penny-filled wash-tub in the front hall, or an atmosphere cluttered by "Go Wave" leaflets dropped from a plane? Would you believe our school had piped in music in the form of "Please, Please, Don't Be a Litter-bug" ten times daily, for one solid week?

This is our school, seasoned by age and the spice of lively, ingenious students.

Interested students, Mary Ann Marsh, Mepes Johnson, Alice Squires, and Ronnie Erb, are potential buyers of Missile pictures; thus the Missile is provided with an additional source of revenue.

Our World Of Student Life Expanded

In New York for the Columbia Yearbook Workshop are Shelley Laffoon, Bruce Cliborne, Barbara Weiner, and Mary Paige Abeel.

Scouring the far corners of the earth, travel-minded students leave evidence of their passage. As a means of expanding their school-oriented world, travel has served to supplement education, especially in the realms of human relationships, geography, history, and art. Ushered in by a trip to Europe, this school year has brought forth the annual publication pilgrimages to Columbia University in New York and to SIPA in Lexington. Not to be omitted in this summary of itineraries are the annual Art Club journey and the faithful treks to away games, all made in an effort to expand our world of student life.

Junior Miss 1968—Elizabeth Ellis

In an effort to recognize beauty and also as a part of festive celebrations, Petersburg High School students select queens for each of their three annual dances. Deeming it an honor to be chosen to reign over these events, our female students eagerly await a nomination to represent their class and thus have a chance at the title. However, while the election of dance queens is chiefly a popularity poll, the selection of Junior Miss is based on personality, poise, talent, and scholastic achievements. Jointly sponsored by the Senior Class and the Petersburg Jaycees, the Junior Miss Pageant is a delightful event, one which is twofold in its purpose; for it not only provides senior girls with stage experience, but also provides the other students with an evening's entertainment.

Great Undercurrents Of Cultural Interest

Our students demonstrate their basic concern for undertakings of an aesthetic nature by undaunted exertions in the production of plays, concerts, and lasting works of art. 1967-'68 has gone down in the annals of high school history as a year of great advancement in the realm of culture.

Members of the Brandywine Trio Elizabeth Ellis, Kim Johnson, and Mary Wentworth entertain with a variety of folk songs at a joint function of the social clubs.

PHS—Thanks For The Memories

An exciting year, a memorable year—this has been 1967-'68. Immortalized by a champion football team, a superb basketball team, and important advancements in cultural undertakings, this year holds many memories for seniors and underclassmen alike. A never-to-be-forgotten experience, this year has made history.

Recognized by the Optimist Club as outstanding seniors, Frank Wiley, Donna Ford, Ronnie Erb, Mary Paige Abeel, and Bruce Cliborne proudly display their trophies.

The hard work of the junior committee, coupled with the desire of the class to participate, contributed to the success of the Ring Dance. As the juniors step through the traditional ring figure, they symbolically leave the undergraduate and soon enter the highest rank level as seniors.

Students Strive For Personal Goals

Success in our growing and developing world has been due to the individual student. In school life the various activities are keyed to the development of one's own personal interests. As the younger students climb to the height of senior maturity, they find that each new grade level leaves with them some knowledge and also some reward for their accomplishments in student life. Each new grade level is a rung on the ladder, the top being the ultimate goal of a senior, graduation. An eighth grader's first step is adjustment, while a freshman's goal is to find a sense of belonging. Upperclassmen strive for leadership, while seniors, having reached the top rung, look back on their four years, hoping to find accomplishment. Thus, with development comes growth, this growth being the physical, social, and academic accomplishments of the individual.

Eighth Grade—First Step An Experience

"The first step which one makes in the world is the one on which depends the rest of our days." Although Voltaire said this many years ago, it applies today in our very own school. The eighth grade provides the scene for this first step. Education is of primary importance at a school, and here one begins his studies. He obtains knowledge socially, morally, and academically. This is the adjustment year between elementary and high school. A student joins activities which enable him to gain experience for future years. It is of utmost importance to step squarely on the first rung of the ladder so one may step squarely into the outside world.

Early leadership is shown by the newly elected eighth grade officers: secretary, Karen Kelly; president, James Jackson; and vice-president, Barbara Wilkerson.

Freshmen Actively Accept Responsibility

This year's freshman class has been a major contributing factor to the student activity at Petersburg High School. A group of students, such as the freshmen, are not born with the fine spirit which they have, but must develop this characteristic. Having displayed this spirit at football games as well as at pep rallies, they have won the spirit stick several times. Ninth graders participate actively in clubs and school functions and have a deep interest in their future at PHS. They eagerly look forward to the years when they will be the upperclassmen.

Clubs! Dances! Activities! In the sophomore year one finds himself concerned with something more than just being bogged down with tests and homework. He discovers that school is something more than just term papers and book reports. The sophomore year brings new and varied activities to the student and gives him a chance to broaden his interests. Each year the Fall Festival Dance is sponsored by the sophomore class. This responsibility gives the student a feeling of belonging. He realizes that he is finally a part of the school and its activities. Sophomores add a great deal to the spirit and life of PHS.

College! Careers! These goals are set by juniors as they begin preparations for the future. High school takes on new and greater meaning for the class of '69 when graduation and higher education are within reach. This year can be described as the turning point in high school as students anticipate the responsibilities and decisions of years to come after high school life has ended.

Highlighting this year is the long-awaited receiving of class rings at the Ring Dance, one of the most colorful and never to be forgotten occasions in the school calendar. This event, usually in March, marks the approach of the juniors to senior status and that final step—graduation.

nior class is led by vice-president, Frank Scott; secretary, m Graves; and president, Russ Conway.

1967-'68—Best Senior Year Ever!

Graduation! This is the key that opens a new adult world. During this final year, each senior is confronted with many important decisions which will influence the rest of his life. Expectation for what lies ahead and memories of the past four years are in the thoughts of every graduating senior. Of the varied activities included in this final year, one of the main occurences is Senior Week ending with the Senior Prom. On such days as Bicycle Day and Music Day, the privileged seniors display their seniority over the underclassmen. Although senior year marks the end of much frustration and anxiety, it also marks the beginning of an even more complex world.

Secretaries Bonnie Burch and Mary Paige Abeel, Vice-Presidents Phyllis Elder and Ingrid Toenniges, and Presidents Mark Sisisky and Jean Cook work together to make the senior year the best ever.

The interior of the newly opened J. C. Penney and Company store in Walnut Mall has attracted many customers because of its uniqueness. Penney's is the home of Petersburg's first escalator.

The concept of buying and selling is an important one in the world today as it has been in all ages. In this highly competitive age businessmen must keep the image of their products ever before the public through advertising; for honest promotion through good advertising is the mainstay of profitable business.

Since publicizing their products and services has become such an important key to modern business, Petersburg merchants have found that advertising in the Missile is one effective way of achieving this. The students of PHS are attracted to the advertisements keyed to their individual needs. and they are also influenced greatly by the downtown businessmen as future employers.

Therefore, the Missile staff of 1968 salutes the merchants and civic organizations of Petersburg for their continuous support; for it is they who have helped make this endeavor possible.

Pepsi-Cola cold beats any cola cold!

Drink Pepsi cold — the colder the better. Pepsi-Cola's taste was created for the cold. That special Pepsi taste comes alive in the cold. Drenching, quenching taste that never gives out before your thirst gives in. Pepsi pours it on!

Taste that
others cold...
Pepsi
pours it on!

"Homes of Personal Service"

More than 21,000 licensed and state-regulated consumer finance offices in the United States today serve more individuals and families with consumer installment loans than does any other type of financial institution.

Over half of these consumer finance customers are in the $5,000 to $10,000 income bracket, and two-thirds of them now own their homes.

We are proud to be a part of this great industry that provides . . .

GOOD GAS SERVICE MAKES WARM FRIENDS

CONGRATULATIONS, GRADUATES!

Although now you are graduates, you can do a great service for the rest of us, if you never cease to be students — looking for opportunities and ways to cherish the American system of free enterprise and to improve the American way of life. You can be thankful for free schools in a country where you are free to worship and work and think and talk as you please. This is your heritage from the people who built America.

THE FUTURE is pretty largely in your hands — you must be vigilant and active to combat the evils of socialism, government domination of private industry, and all the "isms" that destroy democracy. We depend upon you to do a good job.

The Petersburg and Hopewell Gas Company

Acknowledgements

Like any task which one strives to complete, the quality of the final product depends on the effort exerted. Outstanding contributions have been made by many, and their efforts have been met with gratitude. These are the individuals without whom the '68 Missile could never have become a reality. Special thanks are extended to:

The administration, faculty, and students of Petersburg High School for your patience, co-operation, and adamant support.

Petersburg area merchants for their patronage and constant financial support.

Mr. Jesse Pennell and the Delmar Company for their guidance and assistance in printing the 1968 Missile.

Our business staff for an outstanding job. This year more ads were sold than in any previous year, and subscriptions reached a new high—1180.

Mrs. Mildred Irvine and Mrs. Earlene Lampman for their help and inspiration.

Our editorial staff members, who have devoted many hours to meeting deadlines, thanks again and again.

Mr. Vic Fulp of the Southside Virginian for the football action shots which he willingly gave us for the sports section.

Our sponsors, Miss Frances Evans and Mr. Burton Alexander, who made the 1968 Missile possible, we extend our sincerest thanks for their patience and understanding, helpful suggestions, and countless extra hours of work.

PHS '68 Ends—And A New World Beckons

Like any experience of youth, four educational and fun-filled years of high school come to a close. The final step — graduation — marks the realization of a youthful dream, as seniors leave this world. College, the outside world, the future — all these are among the open roads which lie ahead.

As one can see, Petersburg High School is indeed a world within a world. The various phases of life in PHS help to prepare each and every student for what is to come in future life. Our school is an ever growing, expanding universe, full of rewards to all those who contribute to its growth.
